The ticket agent enters, goes to his office, removes his hat, and commences a ticking to simulate a telegraph instrument. An occasional ringing as of a telephone is heard while the play proceeds, and this the ticket agent answers.) Station agent. (Yawning.) Good morning. Ticket agent. Good morning, Bill. Here is another day of hurry and worry beginning for me. I am sometimes tempted to think that my work is the most tiresome in the world. Station agent. Well, I m sure I ve felt that way often enough. Ours is a thankless job! Sometimes I m driven nearly crazy with the foolish questions they ask. One old woman came rushing in here yesterday and fluttered around like a hen with its head off. First thing I knew she grabbed me and says she, Oh! when does my train leave? Tell me, quick! and me not knowing whether she was headed...
