Not illustrated. 1920 Excerpt: .of pronouncement or essay will go to every-local association wherein some one well informed and thoroughly competent will present the best thought on the subject at hand. This will serve as the text for the meeting. All the local association has to do is secure its speakers and put the machinery into motion. An example that the fraternal system might follow is that of the Sunday-school movement. The first Sunday-schools were held in the memory of many people of this generation. At first they were simply meetings held before or after regular church service for study of the Bible. The lessons were selected at random. Good results were counted in the early years, but it was not until some genius hit upon the scheme of having uniform lessons that the great popularity of the Sunday-school became evident. By use of the calendar system the pupils in Sunday-schools everywhere studied the same lessons; their activities were directed according to a plan. In consequence this movement has been a great supporting influence during a period when the natural tendency of people has been to neglect the church. This example or comparison may be stated as a sorites. The program calendar is a steady guide; a steady guide cannot be deflected from its course; that which cannot be deflected must arrive or achieve its purpose. Therefore, the program calendar must achieve its purpose. This plan is suggested as an aid to those true fraternalists who are trying to keep...
